YALSTAFF A MAN OF COURAGE.

MR. EDITOR,

Before we pass our censure on the military character of Falstaff, it is necessary to observe that courage is of two kinds: courage in principle, or rather a principle independent of animal hardihood, which prefers death to shame, but which always uses itself to the prevailing modes of honor and the fashion of the age; and natural courage, which is a widely different thing, and depends not on opinion—adapts itself to occasions, preserves itself under every shape, and will avail itself of flight as well as action. To the former species Falstaff has no claim—witness his running away at Gadshill, and his fictitious death at Shrewsbury; but to the latter his title appears to me to be clear, however disguised and disfigured by accidental disgrace and apparent dishonor. Witness his primary character, courage, but secondary, and when they clashed, it is easy to foresee the event. Life, and especially the life of Falstaff, might be a jest, but he could see no joke whatever in dying: to be chaf-fallen was, with him, to lose both life and character together—he saw the point of honor, as he did every thing else, in a ridiculous light, and he began to renounce its tyranny.

The fairest and most obvious way to ascertain the courage of the fat knight is to enquire what was his general reputation in that respect with his contemporaries in the drama. We will begin with the very vulgar. The hostess dame Quickly employs two officers to arrest Falstaff; at the mention of his name one of them immediately observes, that "it may chance to cost some of them their lives, for that he will stab." "Alas! a day," cries the hostess, "take of him, he cares not what mischief he doth; if his weapon be out he will foil like any devil; he will spare neither man, woman, nor child." Accordingly, when he is seized, he resists to the utmost of his power, and calls on Bardolph, whose arms are at liberty, to draw. "Away varlets! Draw Bardolph! Out me of the villain's head—throw the quean into the kennel." Nor does the scuffle cease but by the interposition of the lord chief justice. Dol Tearsheet asks him, "When wilt thou leave fighting o'days and faining of nights, and begin to patch an thy old body for Heaven?" This is occasioned by his drawing his sword and driving, on very great provocation, Pistol down stairs. "A rascal, bragging slave," says he, "the rogue fled like quicksilver." Expressions which, as they recognize the cowardice of Pistol, are intended to show that Falstaff did not value himself on the adventure. In all these instances his conduct, so far from being tinged with cowardice, is rather that of a "FATHER RUFFIAN," as the Prince of Wales calls him; and not a syllable is dropped by these people, or either of his followers, from which can be inferred the least suspicion of his courage.

Justice Shallow remembers him very early in his life, page to Thomas Mowbray, duke of Norfolk; in those days of chivalry a very honorable situation. "I saw him (says Shallow) break Scogan's head at the court gate, when he was a crack not above this high." Indeed, the justice considers him all along as a great commander and valiant soldier. Now, he must have picked up these impressions somewhere, and he picked up none of a contrary tendency; a proof that Falstaff stood well in the report of common fame as to courage; and he was now, "By lady, inclining to three score," and had then passed in a military line the active part of his life.

Had Falstaff been a coward, a prince of such ability as Henry V. would scarcely, at a period of great danger, have procured the fat rogue a charge of foot. And the lord chief justice, rating him for his robberies and debaucheries, concludes by telling him that "his day's service at Shrewsbury had gilded over his night's expedition to Gadshill." This is surely more than common fame. It is the evidence of one who, from his high rank and station, must have received the most authentic information of his behaviour, and in the trust colors. In the heat of an action Sir John Colville of the Dale, a valorous knight, surrenders himself at once to the very name of Falstaff. "I think you are Sir John Falstaff, and in that thought yield me." Here is surely proof decisive of his general reputation. On the breaking out of the rebellion Falstaff is summoned "he must away to court immediately." For what purpose? Evidently to give his opinion as a military man of skill and experience. What is more, the earl of Westmoreland, a general officer, speaks to him in the tone of an equal.

Falstaff. My good lord Westmoreland, I cry you mercy; I thought your honor had already been at Shrewsbury.

Westmoreland. Faith, Sir John, 'tis more than time that I were there, and yet too. The king, I can tell you, looks for us all. We must all away to-night.

And in that very important scene where Worcester brings proposals from Percy, the council consists of the king, the Prince of Wales, Lord John of Lancaster, the earl of Westmoreland, Sir Walter Blunt and Sir John Falstaff. Now, what could possibly introduce him into such an assembly on such an occasion? Nothing, certainly, but an established fame and character as a good officer. In a word, just the like character that bro't Sir Walter Blunt into the same circumstances of honor.

The National Intelligencer contains the proceedings of a court martial, of which Colonel Towson was president, held at Fort Independence, in the harbor of Boston, on the 5th of August. Lieut. Gant was found guilty of sending a challenge to an officer to fight a duel, and was sentenced by the court to be cashiered. Captain W. F. Hobart, for being a second and carrier of a challenge in order to fight a duel, was also sentenced to be cashiered. The president, however, on account of a favorable representation of the affair, signed by the officers of the eastern division, has ordered that second lieutenant Gant and captain W. F. Hobart be released from arrest, and return to duty in the army.

The adjutant general, in his order containing the proceedings, remarks, that the president approved the decision of the court, and in ordinary cases such sentences would be confirmed.

[N. Y. Gazette.]

Milledgeville, Georgia, Sept. 30.

In pursuance of orders issued by the executive for the purpose of complying with the late requisition of Gen. Gaines, for two battalions of militia, to aid in chastising the refractory Indians in East-Florida, a squadron of cavalry, and ten companies of infantry have been detached from the counties of Hancock, Washington, Baldwin, Putnam, Morgan, Pulaski, Twiggs, Jones and Jasper, who are directed to hold themselves in readiness to assemble, at a short notice, at Fort Hawkins, where arms and accoutrements are prepared for their use.

A letter from the commanding officer at Fort Scott, of the 15th instant, states, that the Indians were on that day to give Gen. Gaines their final answer, whether they would deliver up the murderers of our citizens. If they comply with the demand, hostilities will be averted; if not, signal chastisement will be inflicted on them.

We learn by a gentleman directly from headquarters, (Fort Montgomery) that Gen. Gaines, who was then at St. Stephens, intends visiting Georgia in a few days; and that but little expectation appeared to be entertained in that quarter of the country, of an approaching rupture with the Indians. It is probable, therefore, the troops from this state will not be called into service.

Our crops of cotton, notwithstanding the increased quantity which is growing, are not likely to yield as much as they did the last year, in consequence of a disease, called the rot, which has made its appearance in different parts of the state. Many of our planters, who are sorry to learn, will not make more than half a crop. The rot in cotton, though very common in the Mississippi territory, has not till lately been attended with serious injury here. It is remarkable, that the cotton growing on the richest lands upon the Mississippi, and the poorest in Georgia, is most affected by this disease, the cause of which has for years baffled the skill of the western agriculturists.

Baltimore, Oct. 13.

By the polite attention of cap. Dungan, of the sch. Wasp, from Havana, the editor has been favored with the Havana Government Journal of the 8th Sept. which contains a proclamation by Don Juan Ruiz, governor of Mexico, &c. &c. dated 12th July 1817—in which, after a long preamble, setting forth the hopeless condition of the traitors Mina, Mier, Torres and Moreno, he shows how little the government have to fear from them, by the following mandates:—

1st. None shall aid or assist in any way the traitor Mina under penalty of death, and the confiscation of his property, one third of which shall go into the royal treasury, one third towards defraying the expenses of the army, and the other third to the informer.

2d. Any faithful subject of our lord the king who shall apprehend the traitor Mina, and deliver him to any military commander, or the royal justice, shall receive a reward of five hundred dollars.

3d. If the person who apprehends be a soldier, he shall be immediately promoted; and if any of the rebels themselves shall do this, he shall receive pardon for his crimes in addition to this reward.

4th. One hundred dollars will be given for the apprehension of every follower of the traitor Mina; and, whoever of them shall voluntarily return to his duty, shall, in addition, have full pardon.

5th. Fifty dollars, and a free pardon shall be given to every rebel who shall deliver himself and his arms, to any of the royal commanders, or any of the courts of justice.

From this it would appear, that the situation of Mina and his band of patriots, is not so desperate, as the government have represented it.

LATEST FROM LIVERPOOL.

By the arrival last evening of the fast sailing ship Dumbries, capt. John A. Hillier, in 36 days from Liverpool, (which so frequently brings us news) we are again by the politeness of her owners, furnished with Liverpool dates to the 3d ultimo.

From a hasty glance at the papers, we perceive nothing of immediate interest—there appear to be no tumults—no risings—no rebellions; the friends of reform are, as usual, holding their meetings and denouncing the ministry as the authors of all the evils with which the nation has been afflicted; the late famine not excepted. The defenders of the ministry have not turned this argument against their political opponents as they might have done with the same justice as the charge has been made, and attempted to show that the ministry were the authors of the sun-shine and rain by which a plentiful crop has ensued. The king of France has had half an hour's conversation with the duke of Wellington—he has received visits from several members of the royal family, and no doubt all parties were highly delighted with the interview. The king of Prussia still continues to travel incognito. In England we hear of sundry horse races, sundry Green marriages, sundry men tried for high crimes and misdemeanors, and sundry men who have been hanged upon the gallows. Then there are several lords who have waited upon the Prince Regent, who was reported one day to be much indisposed, and who was reported on the next day to be preparing for a journey to the Isle of Wight.

A letter received in town by the above arrival, dated Sept. 3 quotes flour at 50s. 5d.—Virginia tobacco 6d. 9d. per lb. dull—Cotton Upland, 16s 1d per lb. brisk.

It is supposed the Ports for grain, will be shut on the 15th of November.

We have received a Liverpool price current to Sept. 2, which shall be published to-morrow.

The quantity of flour imported into Liverpool in one week from the United States is 35,762 barrels and the number of bags cotton from the U. States this year ending Sept. 1, are 143,384.

It is a curious circumstance that the arrival of Mr. VANITYART, in Dublin, should have been marked by an official blunder, attended with very serious consequences. The late order prohibiting the importation of American flour, in the face of an act of parliament, by which that importation is secured until the 14th of November next, "has been," says The Weekly Freeman's Journal, "the cause of much mischief. Not believing it possible that such extraordinary ignorance could have existed in the quarters which ought to have been best informed upon the subject, the dealers in flour immediately made immense purchases, and at a great advance. These persons cannot accuse themselves of rashness or precipitation, for the prohibition was announced in such due form as could leave no doubt of its validity on the mind of any man not acquainted with the particular act of parliament, which renders it nugatory."—Lon. pap.

London, Aug. 24.

A Pretend has made his appearance at Rouen who styles himself Louis XVIII (late dauphin) whose proselytes are increasing daily. More than seventy witnesses have been examined. He maintains his usurped rank on the testimony of superannuated women of the old court, and is determined, he says, on recovering his crown, and to reign solely by the laws of his ancestors. The mystery which hangs over the disappearance of the dauphin, favors the object of the imposture, though the number of his followers is insignificant.

It appears that the account of the late duke of Northumberland having died intestate, is incorrect. He has left a will executed in 1809, and proved in Doctor's Commons by the present duke, who is joint executor with the duchess dowager; and by which he leaves 20,000l to each of his junior children, independent of what they may derive under his grace's marriage settlement. The estate of Stanwick is bequeathed to his second son, now lord Brudhoe, chargeable with 20,000l a year to the duchess dowager, exclusively of any other jointure. The personal property is sworn to as under 700,000l, which we understand, is the largest amount of that description known since the imposition of the existing duties. The next in amount was the late duke of Norfolk's.

Private letters from Madrid state, that 11,000 picked troops are ordered to hold themselves in readiness for immediate embarkation to Buenos Ayres, purposely to proceed against the insurgents. The shipping to convey them to the shores of South America is to be furnished by the French government in consequence of an arrangement made with the court of Madrid—the same letters state, that a formidable expedition is also fitting out at Lisbon for the Brazils.

The Gazette of Saturday contains an order of council for the further prorogation of parliament from the 25th inst. to the 3d November, when it will probably be still further prorogued, there being at present no intention of assembling it before the beginning of the next year.

Extract of a letter from Amsterdam, dated Aug. 15.

Ashes—Our stock of American pot and pearl ashes, is about 1200 bbls.—the last sales were made at 90, the pot, and 105 the pearl ashes, both the 1st qualities. The demand for the article at large is not brisk, but unless the imports should be very great we do not expect any material decline in the prices.

Cotton—The quantity of American and West India Cotton in the market is not great. There has been of late a steady demand, & what remains of Georgia, Upland is chiefly inferior, except 600 bales just arrived from Charleston. We think the prices will remain stationary if not somewhat advanced, as we may look for some increasing demand towards autumn. Of Bengal cotton there is only 200 bales remaining: sales have lately been made at 26 to 28.

Grain—Large supplies from the Baltic, added to very favorable prospects for the approaching harvest, have had a great influence on the prices, and will continue to have, so that if no disappointments take place, we may see very moderate prices towards the winter. American wheat would now be worth about 420 ggs. and rye 180 ggs. per last.

Rice—Carolina rice has been down to 75 in consequence of the reduction in the prices of grain. As the stock is considerably reduced, so that there remains only about 100 bbls. in the market, it has made the prices to advance again, and we are now at 94, on some more extensive supplies coming forward, this price cannot be maintained. We have neither Bengal or Brazil Rice of any consequence.

Tobacco—Our remaining stock of Maryland tobacco is now reduced to 500 hogsheads in the first hands, the prices have been stationary of late, no advance in proportion to the shortness of the stock has taken place, on account of the expected arrivals of the new crop; as to the probable prices thereof much will depend on what quantity will be sent to this market, and the qualities which are reported to be of inferior: if the stock of the new crops prove actually to be short, the prices of this kind of tobacco will probably be well maintained this year, those of Virginia, Carolina and Kentucky will most probably decline, as the supplies thereof may be expected to be larger, about 700 hds. Kentucky have arrived, which are of a heavy sale of good best Virginia, we have none in the market.

WESTERN SETTLEMENTS.

For the following interesting letter, I am indebted to the politeness of a subscriber, and to the kindness of a friend in this place, through whose hands it was forwarded to me. Those who feel interested in the success of our frontier settlements will find themselves much gratified by the minute details here furnished. It always gives me pleasure to afford information to those who wish to remove to the Western Countries, as they are called. Let the nation spread. Scarcity of land and density of population will be felt soon enough, notwithstanding the "immense swarms" of settlers we are constantly throwing off towards the Pacific. The rage for manufacturing, and for imitating Europe in all her luxuries; and consequently for rivaling at length her inequalities, proprietorships, grinding leases and final pauperism is sufficiently threatening already. Plenty of "show room" must postpone the period of our arrival at this last stage—and therefore it gives me pleasure to see the young and adventuresome going to seek their fortunes in lands yet unclaimed from the desert. In doing this they are probably securing fortunes for their progeny and an easy old age for themselves.

Fort Osage, 330 miles up the Missouri River, March 20, 1817.

Sir—I have recently had the pleasure to receive your very interesting letter of the 23d September last, addressed jointly to my brother Hopkins and myself. Although it is principally directed to my brother at Natchitoches, it happened some how or other to get a direction to St. Louis, from whence it has been forwarded to me at this place.—To say that I derived pleasure from hearing from an old and valued acquaintance, after a lapse of many years, would be but a feeble expression of my feelings while reading your letter. It seemed like a renewal of the days of my boyhood, and like a revival of (what we all are apt to call it) good old times.—Although I am at this moment much pressed by official duties, I have taken my station at my desk with the full determination to write you a long letter; and to answer as correctly as I am able, your enquiries concerning this country. The same express by which I send you this letter to St. Louis Post Office, will convey your letter (agreeably to your desire) to Natchitoches, under cover to my brother Hopkins, and you may expect to hear from him, in the course of about two months from the very time you receive this letter. The public newspapers as well as your letter, had informed me of the general failure of the grain crops throughout the southern and eastern sections of the union—and I observe also, that the same scarcity had occurred pretty extensively in Europe. I believe our grain crops in the western country have been generally pretty good, though somewhat inferior to what they are usually. As far as my observation and information extend, I think the most crop was uncommonly abundant last year throughout the western country. Such was the case I know in this territory; and yet the price of pork has been exceedingly high, and will probably be higher—the usual price of pork is from 1-2 to 3-1-2 dollars per hundred—beef 1-2.—Now, pork is 5 to 6 and beef 4-1-2. This is altogether owing to the immense swarms of emigrants who are constantly flocking to the country from all parts of the union.

I refer you to the last edition of Bradley's map of the United States. No. I will copy such part of it here as may be necessary for my purpose. [The editor is sorry to be under the necessity of omitting the section of map inserted in this part of the letter. It lays down the course of the Missouri, through part of the territory of the same name, to its junction with the Mississippi. Boone's Lick settlement, with the positions of Fort Osage, St. Charles and St. Louis, as well as the courses of the Osage, and other tributaries of the Missouri are also laid down.]

This is truly a very rough sketch, but it will answer our purpose. Fort Osage was established in the fall of 1809. At this time the highest human habitation on the Missouri, except Indian Huts, was on the banks of the river, about where the red letter A is placed on the annexed sketch, say about 38 miles by land, above the village of St. Charles. In December 1809, business called me to St. Louis. I traversed the country from Fort Osage, (20 miles) to the Arrow Rock at B, where I crossed the Missouri by swimming. From thence I travelled in a direct course towards St. Charles, 120 miles to C, before I came to a house or a mark of civilized beings. In February last I returned to this place, and in my route overtook the first families who moved to Boone's Lick, who were in number about six or eight. In 1811, in November, I again went to St. Louis, and found at Boone's Lick, a settlement of about sixty families. In the summer of 1812, the first settlement was made on the south side of the Missouri above the Osage river.—During the late war, these infant settlements suffered greatly from Indian depredation, but still they increased considerably by emigrations. In 1815 and 1816, they increased beyond all former example. The territorial Legislature at their session in the winter of 1815-16, passed an act creating the settlement of Boone's Lick into the county of Howard and allowing them two representatives and one councillor in the assembly. The new county includes all the settlements above the Osage river, on both sides of the Missouri, which have all grown since January, 1809. It is said, and I believe, that the population South of the Missouri, above the Osage river, is sufficiently numerous to entitle them to be created a new county, and no doubt the Legislature will pass law to that effect at their next sitting. [Remainder to-morrow.]

By the kind attention of a respectable mercantile house in this city, the editor has been favored with a letter from Liverpool, dated the 3d Sept. containing a transcript supposed to have been written in the 4th. The letter states that the cotton market continues steady at 19 a 2d for Orleans, 21 a 23 1-2 and 2s for New-Orleans, 2s 3d, 2s 9d and 3s per lb. for Sea Island. The present stock is estimated at six months.

In consequence of the last week about 5,000 barrels of flour have arrived from the United States, and the prices are steady at 50s 52s. per lbs.

The average price of wheat last week was 65s per quarter; rice is selling at 36s 38s. per cask.

About 10,000 barrels of flour were sold yesterday. To-day we can scarcely quote it above 50s 51s. per bbl.

Phoenix Nail Works.

CHARLES SLADE having obtained the agency of the above works for this District, a regular supply of NAILS and BRADS will be kept at his store, on Prince-street, and RICHARD SLADE's store, upper end of King-street, and sold on the same terms as they can be obtained at in Philadelphia. These nails are esteemed by the carpenters superior in quality to any manufactured in the United States; and the works are now bro't to such perfection as to enable the proprietors to render them as low as the most inferior qualities.

Blistered steel, cotton twist or yarn, with other domestic articles, may be had at the above stores on as good terms as at Philadelphia. Likewise, a large and extensive assortment of BAR IRON.

The object in offering these goods at the most reduced prices, is to accommodate their back-country friends, so as to render it as unnecessary for them to repair to other markets for supplies of domestic goods as it is for those that are imported.
